National Pubwatch – providing support and guidance to local Pubwatch schemes

Pubwatch has a proven track record bringing together the pub and hospitality sector, enforcement agencies and other stakeholders to work effectively at reducing the problems associated with alcohol and violence.

As we come back to some form of normality after COVID lockdowns the conference format this year will be slightly different from previous years. We are well aware that some delegates may be 'COVID sensitive' and as such we will not be having any breakout sessions this year. The conference will be held in one room set out cabaret style allow a degree of social distancing for our delegates and you will always have your own seat.

There will be various Covid-19 measures in place depending on the latest Government Guidance at the time.

The subject and themes of this years conference will be Vulnerability in the NTE looking at established and innovative ways of reducing and dealing with this and also in light of the Governments 'Protect Duty' consultation looking at how Counter Terrorism issues can be addressed in the NTE.

We pride ourselves on providing delegates with a great experience and value for money, plus the opportunity to meet other Pubwatch representatives from around the country and share ideas and good practice. There will also be a 'surgery' where National Pubwatch representatives will be on hand to answer queries and give advice relating to local watches.
